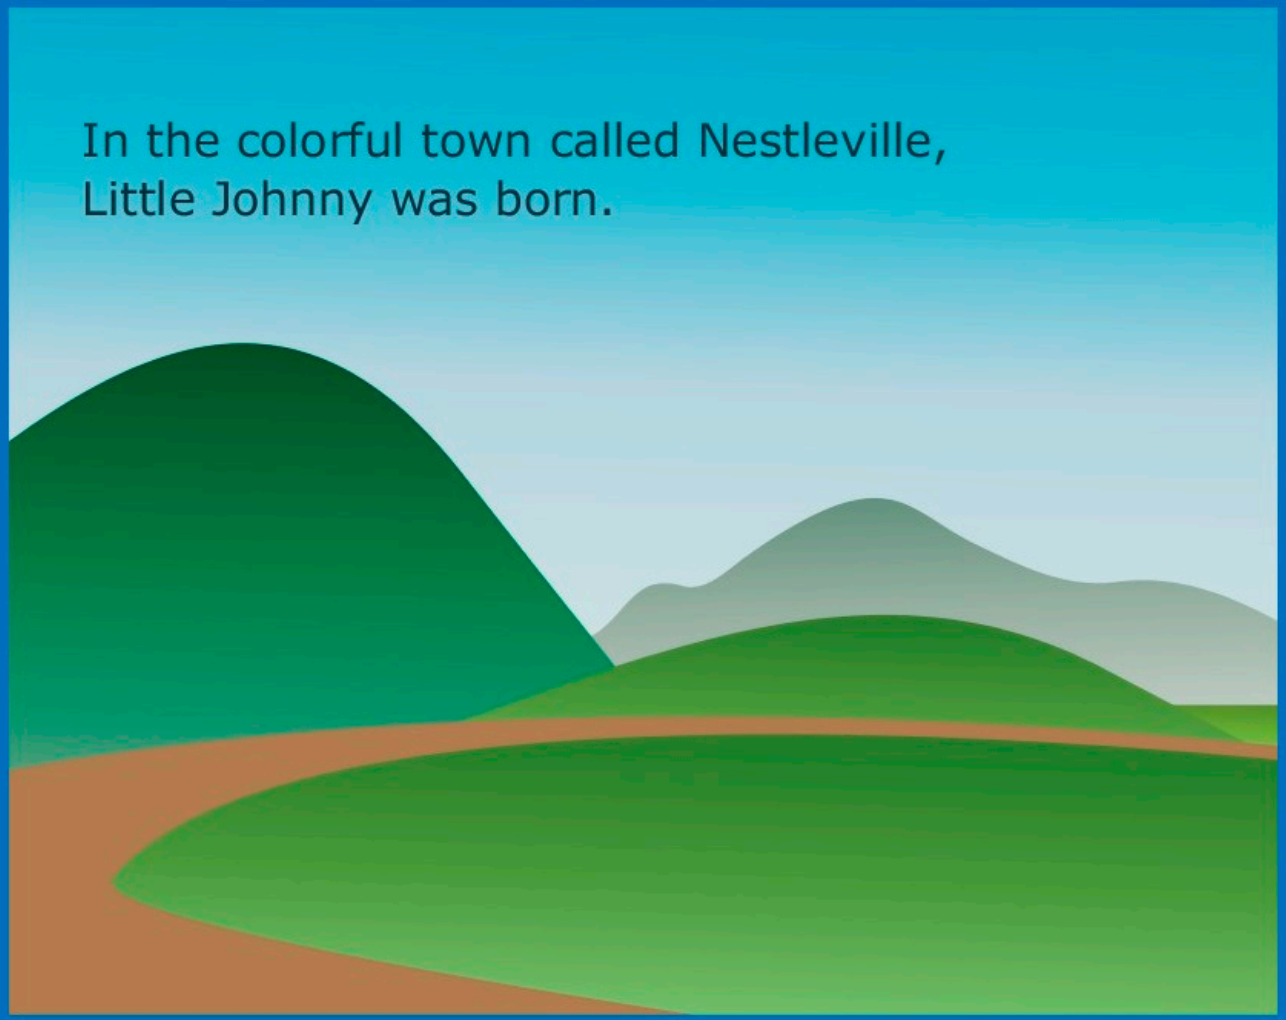
Little Johnny's Food Quest



by Emil Abraham

Dedicated to the largest members of America's food industry: Nestle and Sysco, who deliciously constructed and formulated our "industrial palate".

In the colorful town called Nestleville,
Little Johnny was born.

Papa Johnny and Mama Johnny were happy and full of bliss,

To see Little Johnny live in a world filled with apples, ham, and cheese of swiss.

"In comes the train!", said Mama.

She placed the formula bottle in Little Johnny's toothless mouth.

"Corn maltodextrin, Riboflavin, Biotin, L-Carnitine, Soy Lecithin."

"It has everything your growing body needs to play and shout!"

Little Johnny gobbled it up, none the wiser.

Papa and Johnny went to the grocery store.

"Papa, can I have these candies that I have been longing for?" asked Little Johnny.

"No", scolded Papa. "We only eat food high in nutritional value."

"How about that fizzy drink flavored in berry crush blue?", pleaded Johnny.

"Not today, said Papa, "We are looking for something healthy and wholesome."

"Like these Lunchables with whole grain and 100% fruit juice?", asked Johnny.

"Sucrose, Dextrose, Maltose, and High Fructose!"

"The perfect blend! The ideal nutritional dose!", exclaimed Papa.

And Little Johnny gobbled it up, none the wiser.

The seasons changed. The years passed. Little Johnny became Big Johnny.

Big Johnny worked and hustled and bustled in the city of Syscopia.

After a long day of work, Johnny comes home to his happy family.

Mrs. Johnny is feeding Little Bruce a bottle of formula.

And Little Bruce gobbles it up, none the wiser.
